

Silicones

Outstanding performance for construction and renovation... unlimited versatility for modern living

High technology silicone materials are used in many ways to enhance and improve building and renovation projects. Silicone sealants and adhesives strengthen and protect old and new construction elements so they last longer, provide better performance, enable innovative design and contribute to historic preservation.

For more information about these high-performance materials, visit:

www.sehsc.com  SEHSC

Silicones Environmental, Health and Safety Council of North America: a non-profit association of North American silicone manufacturers.